POLITICAL NOTES.

—The majority of Governor Carpenter, of Iowa, is somewhat over 20,000. In the Legislature the Republicans will have a majority on joint ballot of 12 or 15.

—Congress assembles in about six weeks, and already all sorts of crude speculations as to how it will be organized, who will be committee men, and what it will do and what it will not do, are afloat.

—Among the elections held this month, no attention has been given to Nebraska. The election in that State was for local offices merely, but the Republicans have swept the State, carrying several counties that were heretofore Democratic, and losing none of their own.

—Andy Johnson complains that when public servants grow old they are thrust aside as useless, himself being an instance. He mistakes. He was laid aside, not because he was old, but because he was a traitor. If he had behaved himself, decently, he might have been in the public service yet.

—The Ohio Legislature, being certainly Democratic, Senator Thurman counts upon his re-election as a matter of course, and his friends think that will make him the Democratic nominee for President in 1876. Perhaps so; but that will not hinder us from beating their man when that time comes.

—One of the first duties which the people will require Congress, at its approaching session, to perform, is the repeal of the back-pay law. Indeed, the the tide of popular opinion is so unmistakably against the grab, the probabilities are that few members will have the hardihood to openly defend it.

—It is an old but pertinent adage that "it does not mend the pitcher to tell how it got broken;" yet the Ohio papers persist in explaining how it happened that the Republicans got whipped. The reason, it appears, was that more Republicans stayed at home than Democrats; which is all satisfactory and clear; but what made them stay at home?

—Ambitious members of Congress will do well to study the situation carefully, before the assembling of that body. Probably there has never been a Congress where the opportunities for gaining enviable prominence were so numerous. The men who, from the first day, oppose every improper scheme, and successfully resist the wiles of those who are pushing them, will be the men of mark.

—Following the example of Ohio, Wisconsin and Illinois, the Supreme Court of Indiana has decided the liquor law of that State to be constitutional. The act, which was passed at the last session of the Legislature, authorizes municipalities to exact a license and compels the dealer to give security in the sum of three thousand dollars for the payment of damages resulting from the liquor sold.

—The New York Democratic papers are protesting lustily against any effort to make political capital out of the robbery of the State Treasury. If Raines, the State Treasurer, had been a Republican, and a candidate on the Republican State ticket, instead of being, as he is, a candidate on the Democratic State ticket, would not the Democratic papers have made political capital out of the robbery? Most assuredly!

—Massachusetts papers complain that although the people of that State are within a fortnight of the election, there appears to be no more interest felt in the contest than if it concerned the choice of an "Abbot of Unreason." A few candidates for the Legislature are making a little buzzing, but the canvass, generally, is as dull as business is after a picnic. There is no opposition worth mentioning to the re-election of Governor Washburn, who will go smoothly into his place for a third term; the Democrats, apparently, having lost heart, because General Butler's friends are just as ardent in the support of the Governor as are his own friends, that is to say, there is no ardor anywhere.

——Lock your doors and bar your windows, at night; we hear reports of thieves and robberies in many localities in this county.

WHY WE HONOR THE PARTY.

We are suspicious of the man who is continually boasting of his noble ancestry. To know a man, we must know what he is, not what his father was. Noble descent is well enough in its place, but when a man has nothing better to boast of than his pedigree, he has reached the bottom, and is little better than the snail that looks up with envy at the strong-winged eagle in its lofty flight. It is nobler to ascend than descend; to improve on the family stock rather than deteriorate. To fall back upon the reputation of our great-great-grandfather to sustain our own, is little better than robbing a grave to secure the jewels buried in it. So with parties; we honor them for what they are, not what they were in days gone by. We see nothing in Democracy but the shadow of a great name. When we ask what it has to commend it to our confidence, its Tweeds and Garveys and Warmots, with their party plunder concealed from view, point us to its honorable past, before slavery corrupted its honor, or treason destroyed its political virtue. Not so with the Republican party! We glory in its past achievements, because out of them have grown its present strength and nobility. What it was yesterday it is to-day, a living, moving power, exerting an influence for good; defending the nation from its enemies at home and abroad; protecting the liberties of the people; establishing schools for popular education; reaching out its arm to restrain monopolies from encroaching upon the rights of the people; holding the scales of justice between capital and labor; organizing means to relieve the producers of the West and the consumers of the East, and exacting from its servants an honest and economical administration of the Government. For these good and sufficient reasons we honor the Republican party. We take just pride in its past achievements, because they have given birth to our present aspirations. We have taken no step backward. Some of our standard-bearers have proven false, but the rank and file were true, and loyal hands caught up the old flag and kept it afloat in the vanguard of civilization. The noblest army will have its deserters, the noblest party will have its faithless servants, but neither army nor party can suffer as long as the great body remains true to the cause. The Republican party represents the progressive ideas of the people, not the ambitious designs of its leaders. The defection of a leader, the dishonesty of an official, the failure of a representative to reflect the wishes of his constituents, have no other effect than to arouse the people to greater caution in the selection of their public servants. The great political body is sound; its faults are few, and, when discovered, easily remedied. As the present condition of the party is as worthy of commendation as its past, so the future will add, rather than detract, from its glory. We have much to do; the work so well accomplished having brought other and larger duties for the party to perform. To disarm ignorance, suppress vice, protect labor, encourage immigration, develop our wonderful resources, protect the public credit, adapt the national currency to the wants of the public, and to maintain justice and secure honesty in every section of the land and every branch of the Government, are duties as imposing as any that have been laid up by the party in the past.

GENERAL BUTLER is predicting that there will be a dozen bills to repeal the salary act introduced within ten minutes after Congress assembles. He was not always wont to discern the signs of the times so well. In one of his speeches during the debates on the bill he said: "Both sides of the House are voting for it, and he is a mean man that objects to it, and I am satisfied he cannot find men mean enough to elect him. I put myself upon that prophesy, and you will see how it comes out; and it will not be a great time til' it is determined." It is likely that Gen. Butler has by this time considerably modified his opinion concerning his powers as a political seer.

A REPUBLICAN CURRENCY.

Compare the condition of the country now with what it was in 1837 or 1857, when the Democratic party had power, and its thousand or fifteen hundred wild-cat State rag mills were carrying loss and ruin to every family in the land. Then no man was sure the money in his pocket, held at par in the morning, would not be worthless at noon. This was the common experience, and the bulk of the losses fell on the working people of the country, while the speculators and note shavers reaped a golden harvest. No one had confidence in the currency, and the panics that followed entailed indiscriminate ruin. Now the conditions are changed. Every one has confidence the bill he holds is worth its face, and nothing can shake this confidence. Even if the bank fails, the fact of failure, under the provisions of the National Banking law, instead of depreciating the notes sends them to a premium. No one concerns him self—neither the poorest nor the richest in the land—about the currency he holds, although banks and brokers and railroad companies may be tumbling on all sides. The currency of the country, every body knows full well, has a value that no financial storm can shake.

IT is a sound of congratulation to the people of Pennsylvania to know that the Hon. Thomas V. Cooper, Editor of the Delaware County American published at Media, has been elected a member of the Senate from the fifth district composed of Chester and Delaware. Mr. Cooper has been a member of the lower house for two years, in which he made an honorable and usefull member. He not only took an interest in the affairs of his own district, but the whole state received his whole attention. The principle objection made to him by his constituents was that he voted to make a loan of the State funds to a rail road enterprise for the benefit of our northern counties, which everbody in the interior and north part of the State endorsed as being a useful and just measure. The portion of the State through which the proposed Rail Road was to traverse, is isolated, but a Rail Road would open it up, after which the increase of taxes accruing to the State, would pay the interest and create a sinking fund to liquidate the debt. Why a portion of Mr. Cooper's constituents in the Republican party saw fit to oppose him, is a mystery. It seems to us that the citizens of those counties forget that they were the first to receive State aid to build a rail road through their territory, which they must acknowledge has been a vast amount of benefit to them, yet they are not willing that the State should extend the same liberality to other portions of her territory. Such selfishness should not be recognized by good citizens.

THE result of the Ohio election will be beneficial in a number of respects. Among other things, it has shown that the same old spirit of Copperheadism is, after all, the strongest elements of Democracy. In spite of last year's professions of "Liberalism," which many Republicans at that time were inclined to regard as sincere; in spite of professions of readiness to disband and to take up new issues, made during the present year, in quarters where the farmers' or other local movements gave opportunity for such tactics, the fact stands out in bold relief that unadulterated, unreconstructed, unrepentant, unblushing Copperheadism rallies more Democratic votes than any other position that party can take. This is the element with which the country wil have to deal in the future, as it has had to deal in the past. The snake has crawled out of the grass.

GOLD continues to be shipped to this country from Europe in very large quantities. The draw is so heavy that the Bank of England has advanced the rate of interest to seven per cent. Usually it is about three, to prevent its vaults from being entirely drained of specie. Things are beginning to look better. Confidence is returning, and with so much gold coming the prospect looks good.

THE best proof that can be given of the wisdom of the financial policy of the Government under a Republican administration, is found in the fact, that while the best stocks in the country were seriously affected by the recent panic, United States bonds were worth their face in gold.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

THE BRUNOT TREATY—INDIANS "DOING" WASHINGTON.

The delegation of Ute Indians headed by Ouvay, now in Washington for the purpose of settling the financial provisions of the Brunot treaty, ceding the San Juan mining region in Southwestern Colorado expected to meet the Secretary of the Interior on last Tuesday. The territory is a most valuable acquisition. These Indians are on their first visit to Washington, and during the delay attending the absonce of the Secretary have been occupying their time in visiting the public buildings. The capitol seems to be entirely beyond their comprehension. They asked whether the building was cut out of rock, and when told it was built in peices they insisted upon seeing the men, for, said they, it must have been built by the Great Spirit, and not by men. Dispatches received here state that there are more delegations on their way.

THE LATE MODOC EXECUTION.

It is said that after execution the heads of Captain Jack and Schonchin were severed from the bodies and placed in alcohol, and forwarded to the Army Medical Museum in this city.

—A week ago last Saturday morning the mangled body of an aged women named Margaret Bramlien was found in her room in a house on Kirkpatrick street, Pittsburg, and with it was every evidence of a foul and brutal murder. Six persons have been arrested upon suspicion of having done or knowing something about the affair.

FOREIGN.

The recent action of the Chinese government in conceding the right of foreign ministers to be presented personally to the Emperor, possesses high political importance; since, in taking this step, that government has broken away from its ideas of fancied superiority, has put the impress of its improval on all its previous acts looking toward an extensive foreign trade and intercourse, has indentified itself with the party of progress, and has removed from diplomacy a most difficult and embarrassing question. As long as the court of China arrogated to itself a position of sole and exclusive superiority, its relations to other governments were necessarily unsatisfactory and abnormal, and it was impossible to obtain adequate guarantees for those enterprises of industry, and Christian benificence which are now uniting all nations and hastening forward the socialization of the world.

REVOLUTION IN MEXICO.

SAN FRANCISCO, October 18.—Specials from Tucson of date October 11th, contains news of a revolution in Sonora as follows: A letter from Guaymas states that a pronunciamento was issued at Promontoris on September 18th, by the Connant and Barbezia against the authorities of the State of Sonora, in favor of a return to the State Constitution of November, 1872.

The revolutionists have taken Alamos, and hold the entire district south of that place. They levied a contribution of thirty-two thousand dollars on the merchants of Alamos, which was paid. They have a force of three hundred and fifty men, well armed. Governor Pesquira has taken the field in person, and is organizing a force of eight hundreds men to go against them. The chances now seem that the Governor will crush the revolt at the outset, but all agree that if he should lose the first engagement the revolution will extend over the whole State. It will probably prove disastrous to his political power. Hundreds of poor, emaciated natives are coming on all the roads to Arizona, and are destitute of food and clothing. All communications with the Capital are cut off.

— The next Institute under the auspices of the Centre Co. Sabbath School Association, will be held on Thursday, Nov. 6th, in the Lower Marsh Creek Disciple Church, in Curtin township commencing at 9-30 A. M. All who attend, except those living in the near vicinity of the church are requested to bring with them a basket lunch for dinner. Rev. J. F. Bell of Beech Creek, Rev. U. W. Condit of Jacksonville and others have promised to be present. One or more of the officers of the Association will attend. All are welcome.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

The approaching close of another year brings with it the occasion for renewed thanksgiving and acknowledgment to the Almighty Ruler of the universe for the unnumbered mercies which he has bestowed upon us.—Abundant harvests have been the rewards of industry, with local exceptions; health has been among the blessings enjoyed, tranquility at home and peace with other nations have prevailed, frugal industry is regaining its merited recognition, and its merited rewards. Gradually but, under the providence of God, surely as we trust the nation in recovering from the lingering results of a dreadful civil strife; for these and all the other mercies vouchsafed it becomes us, as a people, to return our heartfelt and grateful acknowledgment, and with our thanksgiving for blessings we may unite our prayers for the cessation of local and temporary sufferings. I, therefore, recommend that on THURSDAY THE 27TH OF NOVEMBER, the people meet in their respective places of worship to make their acknowledgment to Almighty God for his bounties and his protection, and to offer to Him prayers for their continuance.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed. Done at the City of Washington this 14th day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-three, and of the Independence of the United States, the ninety-seventh.

[Signed] U. S. GRANT.
By the President:
HAMILTON FISH, Secretary of State.

——James H. Rankin, Esq., chairman of the Republican County Committee, deserves the thanks of every Republican in the county, for his management of the late campaign. From the time of his appointment until the polls closed on election day, he was untiring in his efforts for the success of the party. His appointments of the different committees were wisely made, and his efforts to organize and harmonize were most complete. The election of a Republican Commissioner is largely due, among other things, to his prudent and faithful management. Although the aggregate party vote in the county was about 700 less than last fall, yet on the average, a larger percentage of Republican votes were out than Democratic. There was a judicious expenditure of a very small amount of funds, and no meetings, while the Democracy held meetings in nearly every township in Penns Valley.

STATE ITEMS.

—Local Option was defeated in Philadelphia by 32,000 majority.

—The fields of wheat in middle and eastern Pennsylvania look well.

—November and December are the months in which to shoot rabbits.

—The aggregate receipts of the Huntingdon county Fair amounts to $2,500.

—There were two hundred and seventy-seven deaths in Philadelphia, last week.

—It is not lawful to shoot partridges, and will not be until in the fall of the year 1876.

—A Chester county man has a cat 23 years old. Its eyesight is good, and it doesn't use tobacco.

—A will is recorded in Cambria county, in which the testator reserves one horse for his own use.

—Rats attacked a little child of Stephen McCormick, of Butler, a few days ago, during the absence of its parents, and stripped the flesh from one of its hands.

—A man named Philip Dallmus, aged forty-five years, was found dead on the street in Harrisburg on Sunday morning. Whisky was the cause of his sudden taking off.

—A horse belonging to Mr. H. H. Shroyer, of Masontown, Fayette county, had a lump upon his neck, which, upon being cut open was found to contain a shingle nail.

—Two children living within a square of each other, in Philadelphia, were scalded to death one day last week, in vessels of hot water carelessly left standing on the floor.

Joshua Forrest, of Washington county, was fined $10 and costs for cutting a valuable cow with a hatchet. The cow had found her way into the garden and destroyed some vegetables.

—The new Williamsburg branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad, from Altoona, via Hollidaysburg to Williamsburg, was thrown open to the public on Monday. Two passenger trains will run on it daily.

—A lady presented the editor of the Huntingdon Globe with a handsome boquet of dahlias, and said editor is profuse in his thanks. He was also presented with the two cabbage heads that drew the premium at the Huntingdon County Fair. The last must have been given by some merciless joker.

—The Democratic candidate for the Legislature in Warren county spells his name Fuelhart. The Democrats made him believe they could elect him, and they were able, thus, to fool him to his heart's content. He was beaten so badly that his heart is full of bitter indignation. He will not be so foolhardy as to run again.

—A man in Chester township, Delaware county, got scared during the early part of the financial flurry, and drew $2,000 from bank and kept it in his house. The house was destroyed by fire on the 14th inst., and with it the money. The bank proved to be perfectly sound, and the man now mourns over his lack of faith.

—Jacob Kaiser, a farmer, of Douglass township, Berks county, has been missing from his home for about ten days, and all trace of him has been lost. The reason for his sudden flitting is found in the fact that he forged notes to the amount of $3,000 or $4,000, borrowed a like amount of money from his friends, and left behind debts of at least $5,000. He left twenty-five cents in money and a sick wife at home.

——A Centre County candidate who did not receive a majority of the votes polled last week, was met no the streets by a respectable widow who takes in washing. She passed, bowed pleasantly and said "good morning." He replied that he'd lost a good deal of money lately and would be hanged if he'd pay any of his small bills till he got ready.

Poetry.

"THEY HAVE STOPPED SELLING LIQUOR IN TOWN."

Here's good news for you, mother, the old farmer said,
As he paused where his good wife was moulding the bread,
I've been walking awhile with our friend neighbor Brown,
And he says they've stopped selling liquor in town.

I just took off my hat and shouted huzza,
When he said men had got to live up to the law.
And I knew it would make your heart happy to know,
They have dried up the fountain of madness and woe.
Now the town will be peaceful and safe once again,
And the street won't be crowded with wild drunken men.
And the boys won't be tempted to smoke drink and fight,
To gamble all day and carouse all the night.

There's Kate, bless her heart, she will dance like a top,
For she can go back now and sew in the shop,
It won't be unsafe for her now I am sure,
For though she is thoughtless the child's heart is pure,

You needn't buy things at the corners no more,
For I'll send Sam to town to the big dry goods store,
He won't come home drunk with the buggy broke down,
For I tell you they have stopped selling liquor in town.

Ther's Jim he won't study and don't take to work.
We can let him go now and hire out for a clerk,
It will do the boy good, he'll find out it ain't play,
And there ain't any grog-shops to lead him astray.

And there's little Peter, you know how he learns,
And how he saves up every penny he earns
To buy a new book, and the boy's got a plan
That he'll be a lawyer when he is a man.

So if you are willing to venture, I think
We will send him to town now, he won't learn to drink.
They've got a good school, and he'll learn very fast,
I am glad they have stopped selling liquor at last.

He paused, and the wife of his youth made reply,
While joy sent the tear-drops like pearls from her eye,
"Heaven bless the pure hearts that have put the curse down.
Thank God they have stopped selling liquor in town."

HENRI;

OR

THE WEB AND WOOF OF LIFE.

BY WILLIAM G. CAMBRIDGE.

CHAPTER XXIX.

OLD ACQUAITANCE.

When our good uncle and aunt had returned to their home, Mrs. Stewart, Lelia and myself, were left in quiet possession of the dear and pleasant old homestead. I need not to infrom the reader that life was now peaceful and joyous; for how could it be otherwise? One day, when Lelia had run in to see Mr. Edgarton a few minutes, I noticed that Mrs. Stewart's face wore a very thoughtful expression.

"You seem to be in a revery." I remarked.

"I was thinking of old scenes," she replied.

"I hope your thoughts were pleasant."

"Yes, dear, more so than they were wont to be in days gone by."

"I am glad of that, dear mother," I said, kneeling down before her, and taking both her hands in mine, looking up to her face with my heart brim-full of love, and filial devotion.

"God bless you, my dear boy!" she replied, bending down and kissing my cheek, while tears of joy glistened in her eyes.

"He has blessed me beyond my deserts, in giving me such a sweet wife and good mother. You are happy, now, I trust."

"God knows I am, Henri, very, very happy," she said, while the tears fell rapidly from her eyes. "I did not expect that such blessings would be mine in my old age. I thought Lelia was in her grave, and that she could not come to me, but I must go to her. Little did I think, when I took in the poor, pale-faced boy, and gave him a good, warm supper that it was my own child! How, glad I am that I always treated children well! If I had not, it might have been my punishment to have abused and slighted my own lost one."

"Your heart was always too merciful to allow you to abuse anything."

"I can almost return the compliment."

"Not quite."

"But you have a good heart, Henri; and you have done so much for me!"

"Not so much as you have done for me."

"I believe you are mistaken there, but we will not quarrel,—I am glad that the obligations are mutual. I have cause to be thankful for one thing, which I could not reasonably have anticipated, had I known that Lelia was living."

"What was that?"

"She is as innocent and pure, and more self-sacrificing, than she could have been, had she always remained with me."

"She has passed through the fire, and come out unscathed."

"There are but few natures that could endure so much, and remain pure, innocent, and most loving of heart!

Here there was a pause, while I continued to hold her hands, and gaze into her face. After sitting in silence for a few minutes, she said,

"There is one thing, Henri, which would gratify me very much."

"What is it?" I inquired.

"To visit, once more, my old home!"

"Do you mean Uncle Eaton's?"

"No, Henri! The home which was mine before my husband was taken from me, and where I lived when I lost my Lelia."

"Your wish shall be granted, mother, and we will go to-morrow, if the day is pleasant,"

"You must not tell Lelia of our intentions; for she thinks she should know the house, and the scenery around it."

"I will not; for I am as anxious to see what the result will be as you are."

Here Lelia came in; and seeing my position she knelt down by my side, looking into the face of each with worlds of affection gushing from her sweet blue eyes. It was a happy trio, and the purest joy was brimming from all our hearts.

The next morning the sun rose clear and golden, making the world glad in its great light. At eight o'clock we commenced our short journey. We had but nine miles to go, and the ride was pleasant; for the road was good, and the scenery varied and pleasing. Mrs. Stewart informed me, by a sign, when we passed the house where Austin, the murderer, had lived. Just beyond we came to some woods; and then Lelia started and turned very pale. I inquired the cause of her emotion. She said that strange and indistinct thoughts came crowding upon her, as soon as she came in sight of the grove.

"It must have been there," she said, "where the monster attempted to take my life! It makes my blood run cold to think of it!"

We had gone but little further, when she clapped her hands in delight.

"O, there is my home,—I know it is! There is the 'cot where I was born! Isn't it mother?" pointing to a little cottage.

"Are you sure that is the place?" I inquired.

"O, yes, I know it is! and there is a brook on beyond it!"

"I don't see it," I replied.

"You will, when you get to the cottage!"

Sure enough, when I stopped the horse in front of the house, a bright little stream met my eyes just beyond. Mrs. Stewart seemed greatly affected.

"This was our home, was it not, dear mother?" said Lelia.

"Yes, my child!" she answered, almost overcome by old remembrances, which came thronging upon her. Just then we noticed a number of faces at the window. Lelia saw them, and, after looking at them earnestly, inquired who they were.

"I never saw either of them before, Have you, Henri?"

"I should think not," I replied

"Where can I have seen them?" said Lelia.

"Did you ever see them before?" I inquired.

"Not all of them. Where could it be?"

In the mean time, the people in the house, seeing that we were not disposed to go any further, came and opened the door. I briefly informed them that the two ladies I had with me were mother and daughter, and that they had lived in the cottage many years ago, and had now came to see it once more. The one who appeared to be the mother now came to door, and invited us in. The mother and three daughters were binding shoes. Lelia kept moving her eyes from one to another of the inmates, as if she was puzzled to make out who they were.

"What is it?" I asked in a whisper.

"I don't know," she said. "It is so strange!"

"What is so strange?"

"I have seen them before,—I know I have!"

I turned to the mother, and inquired how long she had lived in the cottage.

"Some eight or ten years," she replied.

"Where did you live before?"

She regarded me a moment as though she thought I was possessed of a large share of inquisitivenes, and then answered "In Boston, sir."

Lelia now looked up, as if a new light had broken in upon her.

"Your name?" she said.

"Means," was the reply.

I made a signal to Lelia to be silent.

"Did a gentleman ever bring a little girl to your house, to get her boarded?" I inquired.

"Yes," replied the woman, looking somewhat guilty.

"Did he pay you for her board?"

"Yes, sir."

"For how long?"

"He sent money every year, for a number of years."

"Did you not send her away to live with some one?"

"Yes, sir."

"With whom?"

"Deacon Webber, of— ."

"Why did you do that, when her board was paid?"

"O, sir, I pray you have mercy! It was not my fault; indeed, it was not!"

"Whose was it, then?"

"My husband's."

"Where is he?"

"In his grave. He spent the money for drink, and he died seven years ago."

"What did you call the name of the child?"

"Helen Means."

"Did the deacon know that she was not your child?"

"No."

"Why did you not tell him?"

"Mr. Means threatened to kill me, if I told any one. After he got so much money, he abused me most shamefully; he was drunk half of his time, both day and night. I stood in fear of my life."

"I trust you are telling the truth!"

"It is the truth, sir, the solemn truth!—and I hope you will believe me."

"You appear honest, and I doubt not you are. Have you heard from the little girl since she went to live with Deacon Webber?"

"Only once, and then he sent us word that she ran away. I have had many unhappy hours thinking of that poor child!"

"Have you anything now that belonged to the child when she was first brought to your house?"

"Yes, a little locket that she wore around her neck, containing some hair."

"Thank God!" exclaimed Mrs. Stewart; "it was all I had!"

"Why did you take it from her neck!", I asked.

"For fear my husband should sell it for rum."

"We would see the locket."

She went into another room, and soon returned, placing a gold locket in my hand.

"Is this the one?" I asked, holding it up.

"Yes, yes!" said Mrs. Stewart, taking it, and kissing it again and again.

Mrs. Means and her daughters looked on in surprise. Here I arose, and, taking Lelia by the hand, said,

"Mrs. Means, this is my wife; and her name was once Helen Means!"

"What! the little girl who lived with us!"

"The very same. And this," said I, pointing to Mrs. Stewart, "is her mother."

Each member of the family regarded Lelia as though greatly astonished. She went and kissed them all, and seemed well pleased to see them again. Mrs. Means informed us that they left Boston about the time they learned that Helen had run away, and that her husband died soon after. They had lived ever since in the cottage, she and her girls binding shoes, and the boys working for the neighboring farmers. She had six children; two boys, and four girls. Having asked and answered all the questions that were desirable on both sides, and visited the little creek, and other places of interest, we turned our faces homeward.

CHAPTER XXX.

CONCLUSION.

That evening, as we sat at the fireside in our happy home, talking in relation to the result of our visit, which we all regarded as somewhat remarkable, we suddenly relapsed into silence. I was the first to speak.

"I think of buying the cottage," I said, "and making a present of it to Mrs. Means."

"I was thinking of that," said Mrs. Stewart.

"So was I," said Lelia. "I hope you will, Henri! Mrs. Means was always kind to me."

"How would a few acres of land go with it?"

"My own dear husband, it is just like you! How happy it will make them!"

"She has had a hard time, all her life, I should think. But there is much of the woman about her yet. How tidy the house looked!"

"I noticed that," said Mrs. Stewart. "Let the cottage be purchased immediately, and that will save them rent through cold winter, which is near at hand."

"And the land," said Lelia, "will make labor for the boys next summer, and what they raise enable the family to get a living, without such severe toil."

"I like the plan," I replied; "and, as we can spare a few hundred dollars just as well as not, the thing shall be done forthwith."

Not long after this, I bought the cottage and ten acres of good land, and made a present of them to Mrs. Means. It relieved her heart of a world of care and anxiety, and she felt no longer obliged to toil fifteen hours per day. The gratitude of the family can be better imagined than described. It is pleasant to do good; and, could this truth be realized, good works and charities would smile upon us everywhere, as sweetly as the sunlight of God.

A number of years have passed away since these scenes occurred, and happy years have they been to us. Filial, conjugal and parental love, this holy trinity in unity, have ever filled our hearts with purest joy, and, with their clear, shining light, made glad and beautiful our home, brightening, like a ray from heaven, all the pathway of life. Our number has increased, for we have two children, a girl and a boy; and we think they are the sweetest children in the world. When our little girl was born, I claimed the right to give her a name; and so I called her Helen Means. Lelia named the boy, who is two years younger than Helen, and his name is Henri.

Mrs. Stewart, our good mother, is attaining unto a blessed old age, and she is one of the best and happiest old ladies I have ever met with. How dearly she loves little Helen and Henri! and they think there is nobody in the world quite equal to Grandmother Stewart. Uncle and Aunt Eaton are frequently with us; and then our fat neighbor, Mr. Edgarton, will come in, and they will talk over for the fiftieth time, the life and adventures of Henri Eaton and Helen Means; and, in the evening, Mr. Edgarton and Mother Stewart amuse themselves with a game of backgammon; or, a few neighbors are invited in, and then Lelia, or some one else, will play the piano, and we have a social dance; and Mrs. Stewart will join in with us, as young and spry as the rest of us.

Mr. Edgarton will always insist upon dancing in a cotillon, at least once in an evening, with Lelia; and when "grand right and left" is called for, he is sure to blunder in such a manner as to produce shouts of laughter. The old gentleman will shake his side, and say it does him good and reminds him of old times.

I should have mentioned before that, on the marriage of Thomas and Lizzie, George went to live with Thomas, and Lizzie with Jane. They have since married, and I am happy to say that all my brothers and sisters are doing well.

Hezekiah Webber and wife have parted company. They quarrelled so much that he was glad to get rid of her by the sacrifice of five thousand dollars. He retains all the children but the youngest. Since this occurred, Hezekiah has disposed of all his property in town, and, with his sister Hannah, has gone to paris unknown. Job is still here, and he and his wife are generally respected.

Hezekiah and Hannah were long since expelled from the church which they disgraced; and I am now satisfied that the deacon would not have remained in the church so long, if his true character had been known by a majority of its members. Let no one suppose that I intend his character as a fair sample of any denomination of Christians; for, although the Pharasee and hypocrite may be found with all, so also the good. There are Deacon Webbers in too many churches; but I trust there are more like Uncle and Aunt Eaton, and our dear Mother Stewart. Such good souls as the last three are to be found in the church and out of it, and their influence is ennobling upon all who come within its sphere. They make the world better and happier. They are true Christians, whether they belong to this sect or that, or no sect.

I complain not that wolves in sheep's clothing should be admitted into the church, but that they should so frequently be allowed to remain there, when they are known to be wolves. They are wealthy or influential, and therefore not to be disturbed. If they wrong a little child, or traffic in the bodies and souls of men, the matter is passed over as though it were of but little consequence. When such things are allowed, the brother members partake of the guilt.

There is another grievous fault with many professors,—they unite with the strong against the weak; and it was this which so embittered my heart against the church to which the deacon belonged. I admit that they might have thought the deacon in the right and I in the wrong. But they should have investigated the matter, and so have escaped the guilt of wronging the weak, the innocent and the oppressed. If we allow ourselves to judge hastily and unadvisedly we should not expect to judge righteous judgment, and so live to repent of the evil we have unintentionally been guilty of. The really good, in the church of which the deacon was a member, lived to see their error which they committed in justifying him, and acknowledged it with sorrow. But the hypocritical "had always known and said that the deacon was miserly, pharisaical and wicked;" when the truth was, they had not said one word in condemnation of his course, but justified it to the fullest extent, until he was caught robbing the very church of which he was deacon; then they were horror-struck, for he had committed the sin of sins! They had not learned enough of Christ to know that the wrong done to the little child was a thousand times more offensive in the sight of God and all good and enlightened men. But, as the one who suffered the greatest wrong freely forgave all who participated in it (she was once Helen Means), so I, notwithstanding my former bitter hatred, as freely pardoned. I have learned that it is better to love than to hate, to forgive rather than seek revenge.

I need not tell the reader that Lelia is one of the best of wives and mothers, a good neighbor, and a faithful friend. Her heart is ever brimming with love, for both friends and foes, and the poor and destitute speak her praise in words and looks of love and gratitude. She is a blessed, good woman; and no other being could so have softened and changed my hasty and impetuous nature. When I look into the mirror of the past, I am surprised to see how many unlovely traits of character I once possessed, and I feel that I have reason to be thankful that I am now rid of them. Good fortune smiled upon me in my younger days, or I should have done worse than I did; for, as my temper was hasty, violent, and not controlled by reason I might have inflicted upon the victims of my anger lasting injury; and perchance, though I shudder to think of it, have taken the life of a fellow-creature. Now my passions are completely under the control of principle; and it was love faithful and true, that did the work.

How mighty, how godlike, is love! Many waters cannot quench, nor floods drown it. Its mission is ennobling for it softens, purifies and elevates the human heart, even as the sun in the heavens melts the snows and frosts of winter, breaking his chains of ice, awaking wide nature to renewed life, beauty and living joy!

Caught.

A girl, young and pretty, and above all gifted with an air of admirable candor, lately presented herself before a Parisian lawyer.

"Monsieur, I have come to consult you on a grave affair. I want you to oblige a man I love to marry me in spite of himself. How shall I proceed!"

The gentleman of the bar, of course, had a sufficiently elastic conscience. He reflected a moment, and then, being sure that no one overheard him, replied hesitatingly.

"Mademoiselle, according to our law, you always possess the means of forcing a man to marry you. You must remain on three occasions alone with him; you can then go before a judge and swear that he is your lover.

"And will that suffice, Monsieur?"

"Yes, Mademoiselle, with one further condition."

"Well?"

"Then you will produce witnesses who will make oath to having seen you remain a good quarter of an hour with the individual said to have trifled with your affections."

"Very well, Monsieur, I will retain you as counsel in the management of this affairs. Good day."

A few days afterward the young lady returned. She was mysteriously received by the lawyer, who scarcely gave her time to seat herself, and questioned her with the most lively curiosity.

"Capital, capital!"

"Persevere in your design, Mademoiselle, but the next time you come to consult me give me the name of the man you are going to make so happy in spite of himself."

A fortnight afterward the young lady knocked at the door of the counsel's room. No sooner was she in than she flung herself into a chair, saying that the walk had made her breathless. Her counsel tried to reassure her, made her inhale salts, and even proposed to unloose her garments.

"It is useless, Monsieur," she said, "I am much better."

"Well, now, tell me the name of the fortunate mortal."

"Well, then, the fortunate mortal, be it known to you, is yourself," said the young beauty, bursting into a laugh. "I love you; I have been here three times tete-a-tete with you, and my four witnesses are below, ready and willing to accompany me to a magistrate," gravely continued the narrator.

The lawyer thus caught had the good sence not to get angry. The most singular fact of all is that he adores his young wife, who makes an excellent housekeeper.

A GOOD LETTER

The following sensible letter from President Grant will be read with interest. We commend his views to those banking institutions that are locking up the currency, and clamoring for more from the Government. If the banks set an example in hoarding money the people will not be slow to follow it. Certified checks may be a convenience in certain cases, but to substitute them for the currency of the land will soon lead to disaster. To avert this, the banks and moneyed associations of the country must unlock their vaults and pay over to the business men of the country the money that belongs to them. The President's letter should be posted in every banking-house in the land:

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
WASHINGTON, D., C., Sept. 28, 1873.

To Messrs. H. B. Claflin and Charles L. Anthony:

GENTLEMEN: In response to the news you have communicated to me touching the present stringency, and the necessary steps to restore confidence and legitimate trade and commerce, I have the honor to communicate the following:

The Government is desirous of doing all in its power to relieve the present unsettled condition of business affairs, which is holding back the immense resources of the country now awaiting transportation to the seaboard and a market. Confidence on the part of the people is the first thing needed to relieve this condition and to avert the threatened destruction of business with its accompanying disasters to all classes of the people.

To re-establish this feeling the Government is willing to take all legal measures at its command; but it is evident that no Government efforts will avail without the active co-operation of the banks and moneyed associations of the country. With the fourteen millions already paid out in the purchase of the Government indebtedness, and the withdrawal of their large deposits from the Treasury, the banks are now strong enough to adopt a liberal policy on their part, and by a generous system of discounts to sustain the business interests of the country. Should such a course be pursued the forty-four millions of reserve will be considered as money in the Treasury to meet the demands of the public necessity as the circumstances of the country may require.

Close attention will be given to the course pursued by those who have the means at their command, of rendering all the aid necessary to restore trade to its proper channels and condition, with a view of strengthening the hands of those who carry out the measures above indicated. Orders have already been issued for the prepayment of the interest accruing in November.

How Young Men Fail.

'There is Alfred Sutton home with his family, to live on the old folks,' said one neighbor to another. 'It seems hard, after all his father has done to fit him for business, and capital he invested to start him so fairly. It is surprising he has turned out so poorly. He is a steady young man, no bad habits as I know; he has a good education, and was always considered smart; but he doesn't succeed in anything. I am told he has tried a number of different sorts of business, and sunk money every time. What can be the trouble with Alfred, I should like to know, for I don't want my boy to take his turn.'

'Alfred is smart enough,' said the other, 'and has education enough, but he lacks the one element of success. He never wants to give a dollar's worth of work, for a dollar of money, and there is no other way for a man to make his fortune. He must dig, if he would get gold. All the men that have succeeded honestly, in making money, have had to work for it, the sharpers sometimes the hardest of all. Alfred wished to see his train in motion, and a smash up was the result. Teach your boy, friend Archer, to work with a will when he does work. Give him play enough to make him learn early that work is the business of life. Patient, self-denying work is the price of success. Ease and indolence eat away not only the capital, but worse still, all a man's nerve and power. Present gratification tends to put off duty until to-morrow, or next week and so the golden moments slip by. It is getting to be a rare thing for the sons of rich men to die rich. Too often they squander in a half score of years, what their fathers were a lifetime in accumulating. I wish I could ring it in the ear of every aspiring young man that work, hard work for head and hands, is the price of prosperity.

No man is so happy as a real Christian; none so rational, so virtuous, so amiable. How little vanity does he feel, though he believes himself united to God! How far is he from abjectedness when he ranks himself with the worms of the earth!—Pascal.

As ships meet at sea, a moment together, when words of greeting must be spoken, and then away upon the deep, so men meet in this world; and I think we should cross no man's path without hailing him, and if he needs it giving him supplies.—Beecher.

Make use of time if thou lovest eternity; know, yesterday cannot be recalled, to-morrow cannot be assured; to-day is only thine; which if thou procrastinate thou losest and which lost is lost forever; one to-day is worth two tomorrows.—Quarles.

Seeds for nursery stock should be secured as they mature. Peach and plum stones should not be allowed to become too dry. Mix them with sand, and place them where they will be exposed to freezing during the winter months.

There is folly in being disheartened at delay. God sometimes takes natural methods of removing obstacles even when they appear most dilatory. Philip II. used to say "Time and I will work wonders."—C. S. Robinson.

TIMELY ACTION.

The action of President Grant and Secretary Richardson in refusing to loan the stock gamblers of Wall street public funds to keep them from the ruin they invited, meets with commendation everywhere. The willingness of the Government to purchase twelve million dollars worth of United States bonds was a legitimate transaction, as profitable to the Government as it was welcome to the business centres. It has had the effect of releasing sufficient currency to help business men through the emergency, and effectually stopping a general panic.

NEVER, perhaps in the history of the whole country, says the Dallas (Texas) Herald, has the generous kindness of the Jews been more substantially demonstrated than now, when a great scourge has fallen upon the people of our sister city, and laid them at the mercy and charity of their neighbors. From all parts of Northern Texas we hear the most gratifying reports of the liberality of the Israelites. In Jefferson they raised in one evening nearly a thousand dollars for the sufferers of Shriveport, and in Dallas they have been equally as generous in responding to the imperious wants of those upon whom the heavy hand of disease has fallen, and who are objects of charity indeed. In doing their good deeds, the Jews are no half-way people. They open their purses and give to the extent of their means, never inquiring whether their contributions are destined for the relief of Jew or Gentile. Furthermore, they are organized for the successful prosecution of their charitable enterprises. Their societies and benevolent associations they always keep intact, and at no time do their beneficent lights shine more effulgently than when calamities befall us. We honor our Jewish citizens for their magnanimity, and commend their praise-worthy examples as deserving of the highest emulation of us all.

OUT OF WONDER AT LAST.—The Howe Sewing Machine Co. advertise "The Light Running Howe." I did not know what it meant as it takes a horse-power to run them, until the other day I saw an agent running one with castors on it, over the floor at the exhibition house at the Fair ground. That's what they mean by calling it the "Light Running Howe." It runs light on castors.

COSMOLINE is the concentrated extract of the healing properties of Petroleum, which are known. It is the most bland and soothing-remedy ever used; beside possessing more healing power than any substance or compound ever prepared. It is for almost all the daily casualties which occur in household, the workshop, or on the farm, as well as for many of the diseases which afflict humanity.

FOR BURNS AND SCALDS

It is invaluable, cooling and soothing the injured parts at once, and producing a perfect cure in a very short time, without leaving any scars. For this purpose alone, it is

A BLESSING TO THE WORLD,

FOR FROSTED LIMBS, COSMOLINE is fully as efficacious as for burns and scalds, restoring a healthy action to the injured parts very quickly. It is also the best possible remedy for Chilblains and Chapped Hands.

FOR RHEUMATISM especially Inflammatory, most forms of NEURALGIA, swelling of Limbs or Glands, COSMOLINE affords in the shortest possible time the HAPPIEST RELIEF.

On CUTS AND BRUISES, the action of COSMOLINE is almost magical. If promptly applied, it prevents soreness, and the wounds heal very rapidly.

FOR PILES, it has proved to be an unequalled remedy, and many a sufferer has blessed the day of its introduction.

FOR SKIN DISEASES we can recommend it with the greatest confidence, especially for Salt, Rheum, Tetter, Eczema, etc., and Teething humours.

We might go on enumerating the many other conditions for which it is unequalled, but will only add that wherever there is inflammation from any cause, COSMOLINE brings a rapid and happy relief, and will be the dependence under all circumstances. COSMOLINE is Prescribed by the best physicians, both allopathic and homeopathic. It is but nature's own production, brought into an agreeable and pleasant condition, and is as safe to use anywhere as fresh cream.

HOUSEHOLD SURGEON'S

NOT A PATENT MEDICINE,

ODE.

BY MR. WM. H. CONANT OF MT. VERNON, N. H.

Tune: "Indian Hymn."

Come, Thou whose name is love,
With blessing from above,
And fill this place.
While now with sweet accord,
One in our common lord,
We here His name record,
And sing His grace.

With prayer and praise we come,
This Young Men's Christian Home
To give to Thee.
Here from our favored State,
Her sons on God shall wait,
And daily consecrate
This Home to Thee.

The Christian name we bear,
No name to us so dear,
No hope to us so bright.
Not bound by sect or creed,
In Christ we are agreed,
He makes us free indeed,
By His own right.

The Church and we are one,
Her hopes and aims our own,
Her toil and care.
With her we onward move,
In fellowship and love.
Her blessed home above
We all shall share.

Young men to Christ belong,
Young men, "because ye're strong"
The Cross to bear.
Before His Cross we fall,
We owe to Christ our all,
We'll work till He shall call,
The crown to wear.

Spirit of truth and grace,
Here fix Thy dwelling place,
In this glad hour.
Remove all doubt and fear.
Speak words of hope and cheer,
Make Christian Young Men here
A living power.

Agricultural.

☞ NOTE.—We earnestly desire that this epartment of our paper shall be made as useful as possible to our Agricultural friends, and therefore extend a cordial invitation to all parties interested, to favor us with contributions. Individuals who have made useful experiments and yet do not feel competent to write them out in form for publication, if they will favor us with the results we will take pleasure in putting them in proper shape.

Timely Suggestions.

WINTER Grain should have all been in the ground last month, but some farmers were belated in the work of preparation Late sowing with rye can be more safely practiced than with wheat—though on good, dry warm soils the latter grain has been known to do well as late as the end of the month. One farmer records the fact that he sowed, late in November, a five acre field, finishing the harrowing with snow falling, and already three inches deep. The crop was equal to that sown six weeks sooner. A greater amount of seed was sown on the late piece.

MANURING GRASS AND GRAIN.—On Long Island the teams are all busy at this time (Sept 11,) drawing rotted manure to the fields, and laborers engaged in spreading broadcast over the surface (the already sprouted grain showing itself here and there) to give some protection and nourishment to the grain in its first stage of development. On these extremely light soils the produce of grain under this practice proves remunerative. Extended to the grass fields, which there pay so finely on account of the proximity to market, the profit of the application would be quite as great We are not advocating top dressing as the best way of applying manure, but we know that is a profitable method when coped with the use of a due proportion mingled with the soil. Muck leaves, decomposed sod, old straw, waste hops, old tan, and a variety of other wastes, may be profitably employed as top dressing. Do not forget that this practice may be continued all autumn and winter, whenever the fields can be traveled over without injury. We have top dressed frequently on the snow, which, when melted, allowed the manure to settle down about the roots of grass and grain. The benefit accuring seemed greater than could be accounted for by the valne of the manure itself.

SURFACE DRAINAGE cannot now be safely neglected. All natural water courses should be widely and clearly opened—the necessary furrows leading to them should be cleaned down to the firm soil, and the proper stays placed to check the flow down steep banks, and turn the water into harmless channels.

DRAINS should be examined, the outlet properly secured, and fields that need drainage should be inspected. A good plan in practice is to dig holes here and there, say four feet deep, and making observations of the rise of water in them, note the conduct of the land under different states of weather up to the time of commencing drainage. With knowledge gained in this way, partial drainings may be made to answer a very good purpose.

DITCHES.—Everything on the farm, if let alone, becomes worse more easily than better. It is especially so with open ditches on reclaimed swamp lands. Tile-drains, by the way, are greatly superior to open ditches for the general purposes of drainage. Still there are situations where open drains are preferable. If you have any of these, now is the time to clean out the mud, and to deepen them, if necessary. The ditches should be cleaned out frequently. Such lands were made good by much labor. It is bad economy not to keep them good, by a little labor, once in a year or two, as may appear necessary to keep the water running freely, in order that the sour, unnutritious grasses may give place to those that are sweet and nutritious.

POTATOES yet to be dug, should be taken out only on dry days, allowing them to remain on the surface long enough to dry, and immediately transferred to bins in well ventilated dry cellars. They should be handled as little as possible, and kept from the light after storing.

Fall Care of Asparagus.

Much of the value of asparagus beds depend upon the care they receive in the fall as a preparation for wintering. As early as the stalks begin to turn yellow, they should be cut, dried, and placed in a pile and burned. Too much care cannot be taken to prevent the seed from falling upon the bed, becoming covered with soil, and germinating in spring, as these young plants render the roots too thick in the bed, and being near the surface will make but feeble growth, and be of little if any value, but rather a detriment to the rest of the bed.

After the removal of the stalks cover the bed with a coat of good fine manure, and fork it into the soil down to the crown of the plants. This manure, acted upon by the fall rains, will wash down among the roots, giving them the food necessary for spring growth, increasing the size and earliness of the stalks.

Just before the setting in of winter, cover the bed several inches thick with coarse stable litter, to remain as a protection from frost, and by its decomposition and washing down, add to the fertility of the soil. Plants that have been set but one or two years, and before they come to cutting regularly, may be covered with a few inches of good soil taken from the sides of the bed. After they have attained a good size and the roots have spread, this may be omitted, as digging at the side of the bed would injure the spreading roots. The winter covering may be stirred early in spring, the coarser straw raked off and the fine manure forked into the bed. This treatment annually will insure a good supply of early, succulent and large asparagus.

To Make Boys Good Farmers.

Induce them to take an interest in the farm, in the implements, in in the stock —tell them all your plans, your successes and failures —give them a history of your life and what you did, and how you lived when a boy; but do not harp much on the degenerate character of young men of the present age; praise them when you can, and encourage them to do still better.—Let them dress up in the evening, instead of sitting down in their dirty clothes in a dirty room. Provide plenty of light. Thanks to kerosene, our country homes can be as brilliantly lighted as the gas-lit residences in the city. Encourage the neighbors to drop in evenings. Talk agriculture rather than politics; speak of the importance of large crops, of good stock, of liberal feeding, and of the advantage of making animals comfortable, rather than of hard times, low prices and high wages. Above all, encourage the boys to read good agricultural books. Papers are well enough, but an intelligent boy wants something more. Get him some good agricultural book to study. Read it with him, and give him the benefit of your experience and criticism. When he has mastered this give him another.—In our case we owe our love for farming principally to the fact that our father told us everything he was doing on the farm, answering all the questions, and encouraging rather than refusing, our childlike desire of helping him to plough, to chop, to let off water and fire the brush heap

THE following plan proved a perfect cure for a pawing horse: I procured a leathern strap just long enough to buckle aronnd the fetlock joint, to which I attached a piece of small iron chain about a foot long. After one or two applications the horse was entirely cured, the whipping of the chain against his legs, proving so unpleasant he soon ceased to indulge himself in his favorite pastime.

Fall Plowing For Potatoes.

Ever since the period of the appearance of the potato-rot in this country farmers have been studying, more or less closely, the potato crop, and we believe we speak within the bounds of truth in saying, that all who have had the best opportunity to judge have decided that the application of mineral manures will give the best result, and the use of strong horse, or other fermenting manures, the poorest return. Especially does this prove true in seasons when rot is most prevalent. In New Jersey the green sand marl used lavishly, supplies all the mineral elements. In other localities, where this cannot be obtained, ashes, lime, plaster and superphosphate of lime are employed with certainty, when properly applied in sufficient quantities.

All strong soils yield a better crop of potatoes when plowed, and completely pulverized in autumn, and we suppose this to be mainly due to the elimination of the mineral elements, consequent on the comminution of the soil, and its exposure to atmospheric influences during winter. In the spring the more thoroughly the ground is again plowed, the better for the crop.

How Joseph Arch Began.

This is the way Joe Arch began: A couple of laborers knocked at Arch's cottage in Barford one evening, Mr. Arch answered the summons and saw two sturdy bread-winners from a neighboring village. "We want thy man Joe, be'e at whoam?" "what's wantin' lads?" "Why, we want to talk to 'im about formin' a union. Other trades 'ave a Union, an' we doant see why we shouldn't 'ave one; it's time we did summat." "You form a union? why you ain't got spirits enough for no such thing." "Yes we 'ave, if Joe 'll lead us." And it came to pass that Joe consented to lead them, and before the men left his cottage that night he had pledged them to address a gathering of laborers at Wellesborne the next week. The intelligence that Arch would have something important to say to the poor folk spread rapidly. It was the talk of the cottages for miles around. Whoy lad, thee' as 'eard as 'ow Joe Arch is goin' to preach to us?" "Noa! be 'e? Dang it, Joe knows a good bit an' 'e's not stuck up wi' 'is 'arnin' Awl go wi' 'ee and 'ear 'im.' Arch expected to talk to a small gathering in the village inn. To his astonishment when he reached Wellesborne, he found a gathering of fifteen hundred laborers, with a sprinkling of farmers and squires. A pig killing board was brought out and Joe mounted it and began his speech. An enemy sent down to the gas works and the lamps in the street was extinguished, but the laborers procured candles and the meeting continued. The address made by Arch on that occasion was magical in its effect.—The union which he advocated that night now numbers one hundred thousand men.

Whiter Than Snow.

"Oh! sir," said a wild reckless fallen one whom a Christian laborer sought one wintry night to rescue from her life of shame, "Oh! sir, what's the use of my going with you?—You cannot make me what I once was!

"Don't you come from——?" said the missionary.

"Yes sir."

"Then don't you remember the old castle and green! I was there only a week ago."

"Oh! Yes, yes, sir! I remember them but too well; but my going with you will never make me the pure girl who used to run with the children round the old castle and green. Oh! thank God! thank God! they do not know where I am."

And then came the tears, the hard heart was broken, and waters gushed as from the smitten rock. The poor wanderer, whose ribald mirth had but a few moments before frightened the virtuous as they plodded to their homes through snow and darkness, wept at the memories of her childhood's innocence; wept to think that those early days were gone never to return; wept amid the falling snow, till the missionary said:

"Do you know anything whiter than snow, my girl?"

"Nothing."

Then, said the missionary, "Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow,—and when you were that little girl, you were not purer than that. Come with me, or rather come with Jesus, and you will yet visit the old castle, and see your little brothers and sisters playing on the green, as pure in Christ's sight as the angels in heaven!"

Often when travelling among the Alps, one sees a small black cross painted upon the rock, or on the brink of a torrent, or on the verge of the highway, to mark the spots where men have met with a sudden death that others may shun the danger. So God in his word has marked the spots where men fell, and the sins by which they perished that those who follow after may know where perils lie.—Anon.

"There is the same love in the law as in the Gospel, the difference is only in the expression; as when I warn one against venturing into the roaring flood, and when on his leaping madly in, I follow to save him. In the law, love warns; in the cross it redeems. Both are as I undertake to show, the true mirror of Him who thus defines His own character. 'God is love.'"—Guthrie.

As the sky is not steadfastly clear, but is often covered with clouds, still through the folds there shines at intervals the everlasting stars, so through the darkness of our hearts there steals at times the celestrial glory, and we rejoice that there is a heaven above the world.—Beecher.

—An old saying is, "that some people will steal anything, except millstones and hot iron;" but some one came very near outdoing the old proverb. Mr. Adam Zerby, of Penns Creek, bought a lot of stove pipe at widow Heckman's sale in Gregg township, and when he went to remove it, he found that some mean rascal had stolen some of it, and he thinks that it would have been taken away had it been hot. Mr Z. also had occasion to turn the water from his saw mill dam to some extent, consequently, what water was in the dam was confined to one side, forming a very nice pond which contained some of the finest trout in the stream. Some candidate for the Penitentiary also done away with them one night.—Centre Hall Reporter.

—An exchange puts it in this shape: Up in Monroe county there is a man seventy-four years old, who has never taken a paper in his life, because he was too stingy to pay for one. His hogs don't know enough to grunt when they are hungry; his dog jumped into the river and was drowned because he didn't know enough to swim out, and only week before last his horse got out of the barn, went to a saw mill close by, and, mistaking the sawdust for bran, ate two bushels. This is an example of what the world would be without the educational influence of the press.

—The New Castle Journal, of Saturday, 11th inst., says: Just as we go to press, we learn that Hon, David Craig, member of the Constitutional Convention from this district, is lying very low at his residence, and that his death may occur at any moment. His loss will be felt by the whole community, having reached that period of life when man is most able to benefit his fellow man. He is a man of rare ability, and is highly esteemed by the whole community.

A well-known doctor, somewhat of a wit worked so zealously at his profession that at length he fell ill himself. Absolute rest was ordered. "Well, old fellow," said a friend to him one day, "you were once so active, how do you pass away the time now?" "In my library, in the middle of my books," was the reply. "Still concerned in all that relates to medicine, I suppose?" "Yes," answered the physician, smiling, "but now I only kill time."

A Woman juror in Wyoming, recently, had with her in the jury-room her babe, two months old; and the party who lost the suit which she aided in settling, now asks that the verdict be set aside on that account. He insists that the presence of the child was contrary to the law. It is not stated whether the child had influence on the thirteenth juror. The Rochester Democrat thinks that the strict letter of the law was outraged.

It is related of Mark Twain that a few months after his first baby was born, he was holding it on his knee. His wife said, "Now confess, Samuel, that you love the child!" "I can't do that," replied the humorist, "but am willing to admit that I respect the little thing for its father's sake."

—The city of Lancaster last year gave Buckalew 415 majority. This year it gives Gordon 49 majority for Supreme Judge, elects a Republican School Board, entire, and the Republican Councilmen in eight out of the nine wards. Well done, Lancaster!

"How do you keep out of quarrels?" asked one friend of another. "Oh, easily enough," was replied. "If a man gets angry with me, I let him have all the quarrel to himself."

Mr. Careful having been told by his physician that he must take gentle exercise, replied, that he had for some time back practiced cutting his toe nails twice a week.

Very few horses eat corned beef, but we saw one standing the other day before a store with a bit in his mouth.

Iron in the Blood

PERUVIAN SYRUP

AN IRON TONIC

MAKES THE WEAK STRONG.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low state of the system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures, to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

VINEGAR BITTERS

VEGETABLE — FREE FROM — ALCOHOL

PURELY — DR. WALKER'S — CALIFORNIA

EUREKA

VINEGAR BITTERS

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of Vinegar Bitters?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of Vinegar Bitters in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

The properties of Dr. Walker's Vinegar Bitters are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

Grateful Thousands proclaim Vinegar Bitters the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to Dr. J. Walker's Vinegar Bitters, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with Vinegar Bitters. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, Walker's Vinegar Bitters have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of Walker's Vinegar Bitters occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ringworms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelminitics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Bellefonte and County.

——An Evangelical Church is being built at Centre Hall.

——The winds are beginning to sing the mournful requiem of summer.

——Hon. Wm. McClellen, president of the Bellefonte Car Co., was in town on Friday.

——Doctors Stearns and Jackson rival each other as itenerant practitioners of the art.

——Parents, visit the schools and see if your children are doing well, or being well done by.

——We know of no town on the continent that stands more in need of tenant houses than Bellefonte.

——Dan Woods, Esq., assistant superintendent of the B. E. V. railroad, passed over the road on Saturday.

——The free schools of the county are nearly all under way and the supply of teachers appears to be abundant.

——Nocturnal interviews across the palings are spoiling the looks of the kitchen and damaging the prospects for breakfast.

——Two unruly boys were taken to the lock-up on last Thursday evening. They were quarrelling in front of the Bush House.

——In view of the accident that befell young Biddle of Buffalo Run, boys should be careful of life and limb when they go nutting.

——The moral people of Millheim have been making a great fuss because some storekeeper over there sold a plug of tobacco on Sunday.

——The Berichter scolds the young men of Millheim for blocking church entrances after evening service,—a new player on an old harp.

——Another evidence of the solidity of Bellefonte business men is the fact that their checks are taken at par in the Eastern cities, at the present time.

——Fred Kurtz has had a rooster in his paper ever since the election and that patent sheet is beginning to have an unpleasant barn-yard like flavor.

——The Pennsvalley Banking Company has lately heard of the financial crisis-but finds that it did not experience any injurious effects therefrom.

——All persons desiring Fancy Cards, Orders of dancing, plain or fancy bill and letter heads, should call and examine our stock, before ordering elsewhere.

——The most humane deed that has lately come to light was the placing of a large placard on the entrance to the Cemetry, with the inscription—"Beware!"

——Q. W. Kline, a one-armed soldier of Huston township, is tax collector, road supervisor and constable. He acts in this triune capacity with credit and should be continued.

——Those of our readers who are at all scrupulous on the subject of personal ablution, should go and buy their toilet articles, such as combs, brushes, and soaps at R. F. Rankin & Co's on Allegbany street. He has the choicest and most complete stock of toilet soaps in town.

——Just as we are going to press we received the news of the death of our fellow-townsman George M. Yocum. He started out with a party of friends on a hunting excursion, and when about seven miles from camp tripped and fell. The gun was discharged in some way the charge entering the arm close to the shoulder. He walked two miles and then was taken in a wagon and carried to the railroad station and was taken to the Fallon House, where he died (yesterday morning Oct. 28th.) Mr. Yocum was a man beloved by all who knew him and his death will cast a gloom over the whole community.

But a few days ago he was rejoicing in the vigor of manhood, active in business, and cheered by the prospect of a long and useful life. In an unexpected moment he is called away from friends and all the enjoyments of earth. Mysterious indeed are the dealings of God; dark and inscrutable are his ways! Who knows what another hour will unfold; what hopes it will crush; what ties of love it will sunder. A Committee from the Lodge of Masons of which he was a member, went to Lock Haven and attended the remains to Sunbury for interment.

MELANGE.—Milesburg wants a newspaper, so says the Watchman. .....A. O. Furst Esquire, beats them all shooting squirrels, pheasants and other small game.....Now the policemen are bringing up the bad boys who disturb the peace.....Next, Geo. Thomas, to a lady in Ohio.....Hon. James Milliken looks hale and hearty.....What has become of the Undine Band?.....The maple leaves glow with crimson tints .....Thanksgiving day Nov. 27th. Handbills for Raffles neatly printed at this office....Chestnuts for sale at the confectioners.....Wild ducks plenty on adjoining dams and streams.....Brisk fight now going on between the squirrels and boys to see which will get the most nuts.....Autumn leaves, when winter comes. Fact.....Remove them, those little patches of whiskers, and raise a full beard....The Elizabethian ruffles now worn, present insurmountable obstructions to ambitious young men..... To cure nose bleed, move your jaws vigorously; mothers-in-law never have it.....Snow on the mountains Wednesday morning.....Orvis was attending Lycoming C.. Court last week.....See letter from "Shon" on inside of this paper..... Bellefonte Milliners are making a bustle in their line these day's.....Dr. Hayes has his office and residence in the house formerly occupied by Judge Linn on Linn Street....Another large bear brought to town on Saturday, trouble Bruin.....Patronize home industry and don't pay some strange preacher for your marriage certificate.

——And now to wit: on Wednesday, October 22nd, 1873, James Tracy Hale, Esq., Attorney at law, of Bellefonte, was solemnly united in the holy bonds of wedlock to Miss Helen C. Burkey, at her father's residence in Newark, Ohio. By this his own wilful act, the aforesaid party of the first part has relinquished all his right, title and interest in the estate of single blessedness, but has acquired an interest in the estate matrimonial which secured to himself, by virtue of said act, an invaluable possession and no writ of quo warranto can be filed to question his title. We hope the writ of procedendo then and there obtained from priestly office, before a gorgeous array of admiring witnesses may be a title clear to prosperity and usefulness; that our legal friend, in the grandeur of his newly acquired possession, may be seized and covenanted to have and to hold peaceable possession of the same, throughout a life of continued sunshine and happiness, and when the Judge of quick and dead shall issue His summons, may the happy pair obtain an interest in that Estate whose fee simple is life eternal.

——On last Thursday evening, the new school house at Matternville, Half Moon township, was dedicated. A large audience was in attendance. The exercises were opened with prayer by Rev. James Chambers who afterwards made some appropriate remarks. Rev. Geo. T. Gray, of Carlisle, then delivered the dedicatory address, and in a very eloquent and fitting manner dedicated it to the great Teacher. John B. Mattern, Esq, to whom was given the contract for erecting the building has handed over to the board of directors a most complete building—a model school house. The desks of solid walnut, are of Mr. Mattern's own design and are a valuable improvement on the old style. If school directors in other districts of the county would consult the interests and comfort of the rising generation, they would replace the old-fashioned seats with some such improvement as Mr. Mattern has made.

PERSONAL.—Hon. B. B. Thomas, of the firm of Lauth, Thomas & Co., Howard Iron Works, who is also an extensive coal operator, was in town on Friday.

—Rev. G. T. Grey, of the first Methodist Church of Carlisle, has been spending a week at his father's in Halt Moon.

—George L. Potter, Jr., the accommodating and popular ticket agent at this place, was absent last week at Williamsport attending somebody's wedding.

—Max Liveright continues to vibrate between his stores at Snow Shoe and Osceola.

——The alarm of fire was started on last Thursday night about ten o'clock. Citizens immediately flocked from their homes, the cry of "Fire" echoed in all directions, uniformed firemen were soon seen, hurrying with apparatus to the scene of conflagration. "Is there plenty of water in the reservoir?" was asked on all sides. The blaze appeared to be in the direction of the Academy. After a vast crowd had congregated it was found that some inoffensive people were busily engaged boiling apple-butter, and the crowd didn't make much noise in dispersing.

——The Watchman don't appear to have much love for Harry Petrikin who was elected to the Legislature by a Democratic majority of 182 in the Lycoming, Clinton and Sullivan district. It took occasion to give him some pretty severe, underhanded thrusts during the campaign and now it makes sport of him on account of his paltry majority. Something is wrong; Petrikin must have played foul with the Watchman fellows, or they would never have taken enough interest in him to give him so many quiet thrusts.

——Presbyterian Synod of Harrisburg convened at Lock Haven on last Thursday.

——Collectors of Haines and Miles townships want the school tax paid up, —after light for Egypt.

——They pound the Bible instruction in heavy on the youngsters at the Askey school in Snow Shoe. Edward Bible, the teacher, is a stout, active young man.

——Some merchant in Millheim has been accused of keeping his store open on Sunday and the moral people are after him in a way that will damage his trade.

——Victims of Rheumatism, especially inflammatory, should not fail to try COSMOLINE. In hundreds of cases it has performed cures where other remedies have failed.

——At the Sunday School Institute in the Lower Marsh Creek Disciple church next Thursday, Nov. 6th, the school session will be held at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

——We don't see the use of the Duncannon Record stopping half its circulation in this section; if it can't send us a full sheet we wont be sorry if it keeps the other half at home.

——The churches were well attended last Sunday. They are worn a little higher than last fall's style and somewhat farther back of the head but the men haven't got their winter clothes yet.

——Dr. W. S. Harter visited the office of the Berichter and presented the editor with a red beat that weighed six pounds. Now the Berichter office has two beats, a red beat and a dead beat.

——We have some elegant samples of visiting and ball programme cards that we desire to call particular attention to. They are of all shapes, plain pear, fan and diamond, and of all colors and qualities of texture. Persons in need of this style of goods cannot fail to find something in our stock that will suit them.

——Union, the banner temperance township of Centre County, will be presented a handsome banner on next Friday. Not a single vote was cast by "old Union" in favor of license and the County Temperance Society have resolved to show its appreciation of the unanimous vote of last Spring by presenting them the handsome banner as above. The presentation will be made at a meeting of the branch temperance organization of that township. Rev. M. L. Smyser, President, Gen. Wm. H. Blair, Secretary, and other prominent members of the county society are expected to be present.

——The Watchman, in an article of last week, scolded the Democracy most soundly for defeating J. G. Sankey and closed by saying "Hereafter, let our Democratic friends resolve—

Come weal or woe
This rock shall fly
From its firm base
As soon as I.

But if John H. Orvis should again happen to run counter to the Watchman, or any other Democrat attempt to interfere with his political schemes, his fine poetical injunctions could easily be changed to suit the occasion, and Fitz James, without much twisting, might be made to say:—

Come one, come all,
This rock shall fly
From its firm base
In a pigs' eye."

——A night school for colored students has been opened by Mr. J. C. Hawkins, teacher of the colored school, in this place. A goodly number of scholars are in attendance and it is believed that it will be a success. Just here we would say that there are plenty of young men who cannot attend school in the day time, but who have plenty of leisure in the evenings. It is fair to presume that nine tenths of them do not spend their evenings profitably. A good course of instruction in the necessary branches of education, which could be persued easily and pleasantly, would be of invaluable benefit to those who are learning trades or are otherwise prevented from attending day school. The cost would be trifling and the advantage invaluable. There would be no trouble in securing teachers and place to be taught. Let the young men think over this suggestion and then make a move.

PENNS VALLEY ITEMS FROM THE REPORTER.

WATCH STOLEN.—On Friday, of last week, a straggling vagabond entered the residence of Mr. A. F. Kremer, about 1½ miles from town, and, the men folks being absent and Mrs. Kremer upstairs, he pocketed a silver watch which was hanging at the window, and vamosed. He also stole a gun at the residence of Mr. Geo. Royer, near Rebersburg, a few days ago. Efforts are being made to capture him, but thus far have been unsuccessful.

ACCIDENT.—Will Derr and Charlie Albright met with quite an accident last Saturday night. They were coming from Brush Valley, and while descending the hill this side of Centre Mills, one of the shaft clips, at the axle, gave way, and frightened the horse, which made pretty good time to Millheim, "spilling" the occupants out, giving a black eye to Derr and otherwise bruising him considerably. The buggy is a complete wreck.

——Snow Shoe Township always just a leetle out-tops any district in this part of the State. If some other section brings up a man who can run out a fabulous amount of coal from the mines, let Snow Shoe hear of it, and, presto change, they have a man who holds right over him. Let some locality trot out a shoulder-hitter of great pluck and muscles of iron, and Snow Shoe will bring forward a man who can ca. him up. Snow Shoe always has braver men, fairer girls, better marksmen, larger babies, less sickness and more land to the acre, than any other township in the county. If you want the worst and latest sensation in the newspapers, you can go to Snow Shoe and get the material. We have two cases in point. A Snow Shoe man saved his earnings until he had money enough to send to the Old Country for wife and children. The wife, being afraid to make the trip alone sent to her husband for money to pay the passage of a neighbor who wanted to come to America but hadn't the means. The kind-hearted husband sent the money and the male protector accompanied the family across the Atlantic and to Snow Shoe, where, through the assistance of his benefactor, he obtained work. Last week the fortune hunter induced the wife to leave her husband and children, and go with him and when the husband returned in the evening he found nothing but his children at home. His wife had absconded with the other man and had taken all the money and valuables about the house with her. The de facto husband did not storm and rave like a mad man but found a suitable home for his two children and wisely made up his mind to let the guilty pair go. They have not been heard from since and he is not sorry. Was there ever a case of baser ingratitude? The next is a thrilling bear story, for the particulars of which we are indebted, in part to our over-the-way cotemporary. On Tuesday of last week, a Snow Shoe man, named Michael Fetzer, went out to the mountains a hunting. His pair of dogs soon raised some game and the sportsman hied away in the direction indicated by their fierce barking. Coming up with the dogs he found them fighting a huge bear and its cub; seizing a favorable moment he sent the contents of his gun into the cub which fell dead and now the dam being in savage fighting trim immediately made for him. Mr. Fetzer bravely held his ground and essayed to reload his gun, but, before he knew what he was about, the enraged varmint was upon him. He clubbed his gun upon its head most industriously while the dogs did their best to come in for a share of attention, but the bear could not be diverted from the main object and in a moment they where clinched. The bear hugged him till he thought his days were numbered, but the dogs grappled the animal so industriously in the rear that, in giving them a momentary notice, Mr. Fetzer was enabled to tear himself loose. He lost no time in making tracks for home, leaving Bruin master of the situation, Fetzer's bruises and wounds were painful but not serious. A party of hunters immediately started in search of the animal but were unable to find his whereabouts.

——Two boys were fishing with loops in the creek near this office on Saturday. One caught two and the other three suckers before they commenced to fight about who was the better fisherman. They were well matched and the fighting did not terminate in a victory for either side. A crowd of boys soon gathered around and a compromise was effected. They agreed that the one who caught the next fish should be considered the better man and the better fisher. The crowd watched them for a while but neither made a raise and the umpire, to make things even, threw all their fish back into the stream. Then the two contestants united their forces and pitched the umpire over a seven-foot stone wall into the spring water, and the referee had to lie abed all Saturday afternoon until his clothes dried.

——Hon. James Milliken returned to Bellefonte on Friday last. He was one of the commissioners sent by the Government to the Vienna Exposition, and has been abroad for several months, and would perhaps have remained longer on the Continent had not his business interests required his presence at home just at this time. Mr. Milliken was in Paris on the 1st of this month and left London on the 4th. He is in robust health, and seems to have been greatly benefitted by his extensive travels. We have had no conversation with him about the Exposition, and, therefore, can make no report. His many friends will be glad to hear of his safe return.

——Penns Valley farmers might as well plough up the bed of the L. C. & S. C. Railroad and raise several more crops on it. Nature has raised copious yields of smart weed and thistles on some sections, and things look as if the farmers might take a half dozen crops from it before the company would bother them.

——If you want a constitution of iron, use Castile soap, to be had at R. F. Rankin & Co's drug store.

——Pursuant, to the published call the Agricultural Society met in the Court Room on Saturday, 25th inst at 2 o'clock P. M. In the absence of the President Vice President John A. Woodward of Howard was called to the chair. Gen. Beaver chairman of the Executive Committee explained the cause of Mr. Orvis' absence and stated some of the special objects of the meeting.

Voted that a committee to make a thorough revision of the Premium list be appointed and that such committee report at the January meeting of the Society. By vote of the Society the following members were chosen as such committee, viz: Messrs Orvis and Keller ex-officio and Messrs Woodward, Hamilton and Rishel of Potter.

After an interchange of views upon the subject it was agreed that the price of life-memberships shall remain as at present (ten dollars) until the 1st of November 1874, thus affording to every citizen in the county an opportunity to join the Society at present rates, and that on and after November 1st 1874, the price of life-memberships shall be twenty-five dollars each.

The Executive Committee was empowered to make a new lease for the tenancy of the dwelling house on the Fair Grounds.

The subject of the appointment of Judges at the Fair was next taken up and Messrs Gilliland, Hoy and Woodward were appointed (by vote of the Society) a committee to report what changes if any, should be made in the manner of appointment.

The Executive Committee was authorized and directed to arrange for a series of meetings to be held under the auspices of the Society, outside of Bellefonte. One of the principal objects sought to be accomplished thereby is the formation of township organizations farmers' clubs, such as now exist in Harris and perhaps one or two other townships.

Many of the awards of the Judges at the late Fair being informal, voted that the Executive Committee and the Secretary be directed to revise the same when necessary.

Voted that the Executive Committee inquire whether a half mile track cannot be secured on the Fair Grounds and report upon probable cost and best means of securing same. The subject of repairs to buildings and other necessary improvements was referred to the same Committee.

A vote of thanks was tendered the newspapers for publishing the proceedings of last meeting, award of premiums, etc. Adjourned.

D. S. KELLER, Sec.,

——To the afflicted. Dr. Stearns still continues his successful practice at the Brockerhoff House.

We are informed that he is treating all diseases with remarkable success. References can be given of many cures he has wrought in this community, during his brief sojourn here. Many heretofore considered incurable have regained their health and others are on the road to rapid recovery. The doctor cannot be classed with those who come to day, and are gone to morrow, the fact that he remains a sufficient time to cure many of his patients, and greatly benefit others as he is doing in this place is a sufficient evidence of the genuineness of his practice. The afflicted should improve these rare opportunities to be cured. All wishing consultation should call without delay, as his stay is limited.

——We are requested to state that all premiums now published which remain unclaimed Dec. 1st, 1873, and all hereafter published which remain unclaimed for thirty days after publication will be considered as a donation to the society, and will be duly acknowledged as such.

Resolved, That our sympathy is with his bereaved widow and children in this their hour of deep affliction, and we commend them to that sufficient grace so wonderfully bestowed upon the patient sufferer, who has now fallen asleep in Jesus.

MAGAZINES.

DEMOREST'S YOUNG AMERICA is among the best Juvenile magazines that comes to our table, always sparkling with entertaining and novel features. A series of finely engraved cartoons, illustrating the evils of intemperance, with descriptions by Dr. Deems, is announced for the ensuing year. Yearly, one dollar, with a beautiful premium. Address, W. Jennings Demorest, 838 Broadway, N. Y.

The Novmber number of Demorest's Monthly Magazine presents its usual rich display of Fall and Winter novelties, illustrated with numerous engravings, among which is one full page, a miniature of the celebrated Chromo, "Home, Sweet Home." This Chromo is one of the series given to each $3 Yearly Subscriber to this model monthly. How so large and beautiful a picture can be given away, is one of the marvels of the day, for it must be remembered that these cannot be classed among the usual Chromos given as premiums, but are veritable gems, richly deserving their high reputation for beauty and artistic excellence.

THE PHRENOLOGICAL JOURNAL for November, confirms the oft-repeated opinion of the Press at large, that no one can read that publication without deriving some practical good. It is full of meat for the mind, well served and savory. Witness articles like these; Rev. Dr. Blanchard, Pres. of Weston University; The Briton, the Inspirational Race; Our Immortality; Growth in Character and heart; Conversations about Faces, with numerous illustrations; Money, Its Functions and Requirements, which our Capitalists should all read; Application of Art to Dress; Wives who Henpeck; Address to Young Men; The Late Panic; "Nothing New Under the Sun;" Literary Peddlers; Grace Greenwood's Bear; Failures in Business; Intemperance and Life Insurance, a clinching statement; Wanted Careful, Honest Men, Coward or Hero, etc. Price, 30 cents. $3.00 a year. Write at once to the Publishers, and secure the volumes for 1874. S. R. Wells, 389 Broadway, New York.

IN WOOD'S HOUSEHOLD MAGAZINE for November, the table of contents seems spreads for a Thanksgiving feast, and gives evidence that no efforts have been spared that could add to its excellence. "A Sermon on a Skimmer," is not only pleasing in its quaintness, and originality, but contains sound logic, "MRS. Pomeroy's Pin Money," is capital. "Upon the Stand," is another meritorious sketch, by the popular writer Kate W. Hamilton. "Codfish and Potatoes," by Eleanor Kirk, is a short serial which opens well. "Growing Aged Together," by the Rev. Robert Collyer, is well worth the price of the year's subscription; it is full of this great man's eloquence—powerful in its very simplicity. There are many other interesting articles had we space to mention them. The poetry in this number is unusually good. A new feature of the magazine is the introduction of pictures, and the illustration, "Past, Present and Future," here given, is exceedingly pretty. Price of magazine, one dollar per year—with the chromo "Yosemite," one dollar and a half. Address

"OUT, DAMNED SPOT!"—The energetic exclamation of Macbeth is mentally ejaculated by every housewife when confronted by the manifold variety of stains and spots that disfigure articles of household ornament and use. But the "spots" are not so easy to remove by ordinary means. A little Sapollo brought into timely use causes them all to disappear as if by magic, and bring peace and satisfaction to the housewife mind. As cheap as common soap and a hundred times more effective.
